What’s special about KU’s Political Science Graduate Program?

- Award winning faculty with strong national and international reputations mentor graduate students. KU’s faculty was recently ranked 6th in the country for scholarly output.

- Students from around the world conduct one-on-one research with faculty members, publish independent papers, and win fellowships and awards.

- Outstanding resources offered by nationally recognized centers for African Studies, East Asian Studies, Latin American Studies, Russian, East European and Eurasian Studies, Global and International Studies, programs in Environmental Studies and Women, Gender and Sexuality Studies, the Institute for Policy Research and social research and more, and the Dole Institute of Politics.

Programs

- American Politics
- Comparative Politics
- International Relations
- Public Policy
- Political Theory

Degrees

Master of Arts: The M.A. requires 30 semester hours of graduate credit, including research skills and responsible scholarship training. Thesis and non-thesis options are available.

Doctor of Philosophy: The PhD requires written examinations in two major subfields, research skills and responsible scholarship, a comprehensive oral exam and a dissertation. Most doctoral candidates obtain classroom experience as graduate teaching assistants.

Apply online at graduate.ku.edu You will need to include a Statement of Interest, CV or resume, official transcript copies, GRE scores, three letters of recommendation should be submitted, and application fee paid online. International students should also submit TOEFL scores. Apply by January 7 to be considered for any fellowships or Graduate Teaching Assistantships available. Latest date to apply (for Fall admission) is April 15.